The Need to Embrace Diversity:

Forward-thinking organizations understand that strategically preparing their people and environment to leverage diversity is an integral part of their success and longevity. Baby Boomers, who are 60% of the "Prime-age Workforce", started retiring in 2008. U.S. Department of Labor expects this trend to last for up to 20 years, peaking in 2016, creating a projected U.S. shortage of at least 10 million workers. This alone will demand more work from fewer people. The bulk of retirees will be white males, while the majority of new entrants will be women and people of color. To survive, organizations will be forced to create environments that engage ALL employees, and demand increased efficiency while simultaneously encouraging more positive cross-cultural interactions from the most diverse workforce (race, gender, age, education, religion, values) in our nation's history.

Having strategically partnered with a wide array of client organizations, BASIC Diversity has the experience to help you balance the aforementioned factors, along with your mission to create an inclusive environment that engages, motivates and utilizes everyone.

Diversity: Deeper Than Just Visible Identifiers – Historically diversity has been looked at only in terms of race and gender. The field has now matured to realize that diversity is far more encompassing. Because of our 35 year tenure, we have had the opportunity to be a part of that maturation.

We explore diversity beyond visible identifiers. Our Strategic Diversity Initiatives analyze:

Social Category Diversity -- related to visual demographics.

Informational Diversity -- related to education, experience and tenure.

Goals/Values Diversity -- related to team goals and underlying work values.

No segment of diversity is more important than any other. Each has its own set of nuances, particulars and varying degrees of contention. We will teach you to effectively leverage the benefits that each of these segments provide. While our scope of knowledge extends beyond visible diversity, we have not by-passed that area. In fact, having created what has been evaluated as the most effective social category diversity program in existence (The Race Awareness Workshop; evaluated 86%-94% effective), we are arguably the best in this diversity segment.

The Benefits – Research shows that organizations that implement comprehensive strategic diversity initiatives consistently experience the following benefits:

Better Decision Making • Increased Market Penetration • Better Public Relations • Improved Client Retention • Improved Customer Retention • Better, More Effective Processes • Superior Customer Service • Increased Creativity & Innovation • Increased Engagement

Assessments – Before an organization can leverage diversity it must conduct an in depth assessment of its current culture. Our assessments utilize multiple approaches to ensure maximum effectiveness. Measurement tools include focus groups, questionnaires and executive interviews.

Strategic Planning – We will partner with you to develop your overall diversity strategy. Areas include: Education, diversity mission statement, diversity visioning, staffing, recruiting, retention, develop criteria and select Diversity Task Force (DTF) members, diversity action plan, diversity councils, assessing your current culture and then providing constant counsel and advice to the executives and the DTF members.

Through our research and historical experience in the field, we have learned that the most effective and enduring diversity initiatives have the following characteristics:

- 1.) Are designed to impact your - Workforce, Workplace, Marketplace and Communities;
- 2.) Are inclusive in nature;
- 3.) Are strategic in design; and most importantly,
- 4.) Stress a collaborative process with management.

Diversity Training – We will customize training to fit your organizational needs and to cover every dimension of diversity - race, gender, multiple generations, multicultural teambuilding, skill-building, coaching, and more.
